REACH supports Shop Locally promotion

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

Elk Point Chamber of Commerce got a big boost from the REACH Corporation for their 2005 Shop Locally promotion, which starts tomorrow.

REACH approved a $2,000 donation toward the month-long event, which will lead up to draws for $500 and three $100 prizes of Elk Point Bucks, which may be exchanged for merchandise at participating businesses.

"We're excited and proud to be involved," says REACH's Dick Millar, who adds that supporting this type of endeavour "is one of the roles of REACH as a community economic development corporation should be involved in. It's a worthwhile community project and we hope all the residents of Elk Point and surrounding areas get involved."

Millar is a big advocate of shopping locally. "You have to keep in mind that unless you shop locally year round, the services we use today won't be around for our children and grandchildren. I think that's vital."

Survival of local businesses is only one aspect. Millar notes that shopping locally has a much more immediate effect.

"Each dollar spent locally turns over seven times." Businesses which get good support from the community not only pay taxes and hire staff who in turn spend money in the community, they also support local sports teams, schools and community projects with donations and awards.

"As a representative of REACH, I'm particularly excited with the idea of some huge highway signage," Millar says. "That will catch the eye of thousands of people who might not otherwise know about [Elk Point's business community]. They may stop for a meal and make some retail purchases because they see the signs. It's probably the most important part of the promotion."

Draw boxes are being delivered today by a squad of Chamber volunteers, ready to accept entries from anyone making a purchase at a participating business throughout the entire month of June. Last year's Shop Locally promotion was such a success that the order for draw slips was increased by one half, to make sure there are enough to give all the 2005 shoppers a chance at winning the Elk Point Bucks.

The Shop Locally promotion is not only an effort to make shoppers more aware of what goods and services are available locally, but also "a way to say thanks to all those who shop here year round," says Shop Locally committee chair Dwayne Odgaard.

Their mountain is waiting for Heinsburg's Class of 2005

"Today is your day, your mountain is waiting, so get on your way."

Heinsburg Community School gave a ceremonial farewell to the four-member Class of 2005 on Friday, May 20, with families, friends and well-wishers joining Heather Calliou, Amber Krider, Ronald Moyah and Stacie Stanley at Heinsburg Community Hall for the festivities.

Horseshoes anchored balloon bouquets on the tables and joined cowboy hats and boots on the walls, setting a western theme for the evening which continued into programs emblazoned with a horse's head topped with a graduation mortarboard.

The graduands and their escorts were sung into the hall by Malantha Abraham, who also led O Canada. MC Lorne Brown introduced each couple, along with the graduands' parents and special guests. Kokum, Cecile Dion, offered a Cree grace prior to the banquet.

Amber Krider toasted the parents, with a reply by Esther Moyah. Donald Stanley toasted the graduands, with a reply by her daughter Stacie. Ronald Moyah toasted the staff, with June Jenkins wishing all four "gentle slopes" on their way to the future.

Malantha and Melvin Abraham entertained with several country tunes after dinner.

The farewell ceremonies began with the processional, "Up Where We Belong," sung by Malantha Abraham. Ronald Moyah gave a brief invocation.

Ronald Moyah gives the opening remarks of the class address, while Stacie Stanley, Heather Calliou and Amber Krider await their turns at the microphone.

Make that NINE times!

Jeannette Frisby presents the trophy to Tuu Times, who have won the Jan Frisby Memorial Slowpitch Tournament nine times in the past 10 years. They came back from a scare in the semi-finals to defeat Bozo's Circus 10-0 in five innings.

Beirut wins "B" side

They come from St. Paul, rather than the Middle East, but they're still a force to be reckoned with, as their 'Yard Sale' opponents found out in the "B" final at this weekend's tourney. Jeannette Frisby presents the trophy to six members of the "Beirut" bunch.

Swamping the opposition

Boscombe's "Swamp Donkeys" kicked out "KAST" in the "C" final to accept the trophy from Jeannette Frisby. A total of 14 teams took part in the two-day tourney which is hosted by the Elk Point and District Lions Club each year, with proceeds going to cancer research.

Cattle and car shows, garage sales this weekend

By Vicki Brooker
Review Staff

One of the busiest week-ends of the year is coming up for Elk Point, with cattle, crafts and cars on display and numerous garage sales awaiting shoppers. Elk Point 4-H Multi Club's Heifer and Steer Show and Woodworking, Scrapbooking and Creative Option Achievement Day starts at 4 p.m. Friday in the C. G. Baker Memorial Arena, moving back to Friday evening after many years of Saturday shows. Everyone is welcome to attend the event and cheer on the new generation of cattle raisers, and to view the year's accomplishments of the youths involved in the woodworking, scrapbook- ing and creative option pro- jects.

Elk Point Auto Club is welcoming the public to their 18th annual Classic Car Show on Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. Vehicles will be lined up on Main Street north of 50th Avenue and in the Servus Credit Union parking lot, and viewers will have ample opportunity to look them over and vote for their favorites. Trophies for the vehicles voted best in antique, post-60 antique, convertible, modified, show, truck, tractor, motorcycle and work-in-progress cate- gories will be presented at 4 p.m., along with trophies for the "people's choice," the oldest vehicle and the vehicle brought the farthest for the show.

Ten individual sales, four group sales and a first-time- ever flea market are part of the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce Community- Wide Garage Sale, with plenty of opportunity to search out treasures and col- lectibles. All three events coincide with the first weekend of the Chamber's Shop Locally campaign, which starts June 1 and runs all month long.

Shop Locally Month was proclaimed by Mayor Parrish Tung last week, with Elk Point Chamber of Commerce partners (left to right) Mircea Panciuk of Northern Lights Library System, Vicki Brooker of Elk Point Review, Lesia Porcina of Cal's Home Hardware and Dwayne Odgaard of Elk Point Co-op on hand to witness the signing.

'Shop Locally' - what does that mean?

With the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce 'Shop Locally' campaign starting today, you may be asking yourself, "What about the things I can't buy here?"

You can't buy a car or a tractor here, although you could have a few decades ago, but you can buy the fuel, lubricants and tires to keep it going and in top shape.

You can't buy a wedding gown, or rent a tuxedo, here in Elk Point, but you can buy the clothes you need for virtually all the less-festive days of your life, from the day you're born until your golden years.

The Chamber isn't asking you to do without the things you can't buy here, but rather to check here first to find out just what is available. You may be surprised at the variety of merchandise you can purchase right here at home.

WAY BACK WHEN...Pioneer teacher, new grads honored

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE ELK POINT REVIEW AND LAKELAND REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF MAY 31 IN...

1985

The possibility of annexing additional land for the rapidly growing community was discussed by Town Council, who also gave the go-ahead to Borger Construction's 15-lot single family residential development. Staff and students of F. G. Miller High School tied themselves together into a wacky and wonderful super-centipede and marched around the school in a Moga Madness kickoff to National Physical Activity Week.

1990

Pioneer teacher Florence McDonnell was honored on her 90th birthday with a gathering which included students from her 40-plus years in the classroom. The need for a facility to replace the structurally deficient community services centre was discussed at length by Town Council.

1995

Frog Lake Napawaew School's five Grade 12 graduates prepared for "Flying On Our Own" with a festive ceremony, with community elders presenting each with an eagle feather in keeping with tradition. MP Deborah Grey stopped in Elk Point on her constituency tour, with gun control and the MP pension plan on the agenda.

2000

Descendants of four victims and three survivors of the Northwest Rebellion's Frog Lake Uprising gathered at the commemorative cairn to tread the paths of their ancestors in the community decimated by tragedy in 1885. Long weekend parties kept the local RCMP hopping, with numerous charges laid after nine complaints were made about disturbances in the Whitney and Laurier Lake areas.

GUEST COLUMN*A change of plans

Sometimes we like to think of ourselves as a people who value consistency and tradition as part of our heritage. In other words, we don't like change and when we have to change our plans, we are disappointed. For example, on Monday, May 23, some of us made a trip to Edmonton to get a glimpse of the Queen at Commonwealth Stadium. Many people were involved in preparing for this day to make it a great day of celebration as a kick-off for the 2005 Alberta Centennial celebrations. But what happened was that rain poured, winds gusted, some singers didn't sing and most dancers didn't dance. Yes, that's right, the show was shortened, but it wasn't canceled. After all, the Queen was coming, and in reality, she did come. She was gracious and the memory of the moments that she was seen by those present will be remembered long after we have forgotten our disappointed feelings about the weather conditions of that day.

Weather can cause a change of plans but it is something we have all learned to live with and adjust ourselves to accept. In other words, weather can allow us to be focused or keep us humble. For example, when the weather is sunny and warm, we appreciate it. When it rains, we know its value and again we appreciate it. When it is windy, we know it also has a function for it can dry wet conditions, and therefore we appreciate it. When it snows we know it is giving the earth a time of rest and therefore we appreciate it. Then again, in any of the weather conditions I have mentioned, there can be extremes and our feelings may be unappreciative and we may become humbled. After all, Alberta can be a cold, miserable, exasperatingly inhospitable place or it can be the opposite. To have survived our 100 years here really means we have had to learn to be flexible and change as often as required.

Therefore a change of plans really allows us to shift, substitute, modify or become innovative and flexible. So just as the weather caused a change of plans in the kickoff for 2005 Alberta Centennial celebrations, the organizers and spectators all had to modify their direction and expectations of the gala affair. When it comes right down to it. I think it was the Queen who helped everyone accept the weather conditions. She may be 79 years old, but there she was striding sure-footedly across the slippery, sodden green turf in her elegant black pumps, to inspect the troops. Her image, her icon, is a part of the fabric of our daily lives. To realize that she's not a symbol, but a real person, tromping through the rain with her clear plastic umbrella, is somehow uplifting and unsettling at the same time. What I noticed most was how her smile looked so genuine and real as she greeted and talked to people. The Queen knew who she was and the weather didn't take away from that. Thus seeing her reinforced my acceptance of her.

After all of what I have said, celebrating who we are as a people is really important. In other words, it was important that the kick-off celebrations did take place in Edmonton, regardless of the weather. We are Albertans, we are Canadians, and we are a part of the British Commonwealth. But, uniquely, we are community people from Elk Point. And yes, we will be celebrating who we are on July 1, Canada Day. We are acknowledging Alberta's 100th birthday with our theme, "Alberta Growth, Alberta Strong." You are all being invited to take part in this celebration either by helping us financially, organizing or participating in any of the activities.

Brain injury is serious and often preventable. Every year, approximately 10,000 Albertans seek medical attention for brain injury.

Brain injury permanently alters the lives of those injured and their families.

During Brain Injury Awareness Week, agencies throughout Alberta work together to teach Albertans about brain injury awareness and prevention.

In honor of Alberta Brain Injury Awareness Week, I, Mayor Parrish Tung, do hereby proclaim June 3 to June 10, 2005,

Their mountain is waiting

Heather Calliou passed on the ceremonial colours to Grade 11 student Brandy Moyah.

Parrish Tung gave the class history "with mixed emotions. I have one child of my own, eight years old, but these are another group of my children who are leaving the nest." Amber Krider is the only one of the four to attend Heinsburg School for all her school years. Heather Calliou started school in Fishing Lake and later attended school in Heinsburg and Elk Point, returning to Heinsburg to complete her schooling. Stacie Stanley attended school in Frog Lake until the end of Grade 5, coming to Heinsburg after that, while Ronald Moyah attended school at Keephills and Duffield before coming to Heinsburg.

Marjorie Scott brought greetings from Heinsburg Community Club, and said "the community is very proud to have such fine young people. We know they will continue to remember Heinsburg as home."

Scrolls and bears were presented by Superintendent of Schools Doug Yeo, who noted, "there are few communities where you see everyone come together like this in support of their students."

Principal Carl Christensen presented scrolls and pins on behalf of MLA Ray Danyluk.

All four graduands joined in the Class of '05 Address, Ronald starting off with "reflections on our journey to this point and our future."

Along the way, "we have become family. We have learned more about each other than we have about math, English or science," Stacie added.

"Whatever each of us has learned, we all stumbled over many rocks, but we helped each other up on our way to today," Amber said.

Heather alluded to the goals and dreams of each student, and said "we are confident in ourselves and in the love and support of our loved ones, which will help us to get there."

The four came together to wrap up their message. "Our mountain is waiting, and today, we get on our way."

"Today's your day," St. Paul Regional Division #1 trustee Darrell Youngmans told the graduands. "And so was yesterday, and so will be tomorrow. It's all in your attitude. Keep your pride and your sense of humor intact. Your mountain and the whole world is waiting. Do with it as you may. You all have it in you to get on your way and keep going. Don't let the little bumps stop you."

County of St. Paul Division I councillor Glenn Ockerman agreed the graduands "have come a long way. Don't stop here. Your future begins now." He reminded them that "success is not only wealth or fame, success is the outcome you want. When you come to an obstacle, go around or go through it."

Frog Lake First Nation Chief Roland Quinney said, "when I graduated here in 1977, I was handsome like Ronald, and Mr. Wilson was the principal." He brought wishes for "nothing but the best" for all four students, and congratulated parents and grandparents on persevering through the "long journey" during which they were supported and encouraged the youths. The Chief called upon the assistance of two elders who prayed and presented Stacie and Ronald with beribboned ceremonial eagle feathers "to help your journey to your goals and objectives, and so you will remember your culture."

Lynn Stanley of Frog Lake Education said the students have "passed an important milestone on the way to joy, success and challenges. We are so proud of your accomplishments, which show character, strength and intelligence."

Janita Calliou brought congratulations on behalf of the Fishing Lake School Board.

Heinsburg School Council chairperson Audrey Delorme congratulated the four on their hard work and determination, and urged, "wherever your road takes you, use them and you will reach your goal."

Former Heinsburg teacher Roger Thorson came dressed for a different version of exercises, with his whistle and track suit, but "cleaned up nice" and came back out in attire more befitting the occasion to offer a thoughtful message based on the ultimate mountain: Everest. To illustrate the need for both flexibility and rigidity, he spoke on the bamboo forest at the mountain's base. Bamboo starts out so flexible and nutritious that its shoots can be eaten, and soon becomes so rigid it can be used to build scaffolding for 50-storey buildings. Further up the mountain, Sherpas guide climbers through mental and physical challenges, "both in the essential two week base camp and on the way up the mountain."

"Getting to the top, the journey is only half over. More climbers die coming down the mountain than going up. If they ignore the rules, they pay with their lives," Thorson said. "If you don't plan to return to your family and friends, you have the wrong goal."

He urged the grads to be flexible, adapt, "and realize you don't have to get there today. Revere the mountain. It has a spirit of its own, and not every climber gets to the top. Keep going, and you'll be fine."

Principal Christensen also had advice for the Class of 2005, and offered them a perspective on their future, quoting Henry Ford, who said "The best way to predict your future is to create it," and Albert Einstein, who wrote, "Try not to become a man of success, rather become a man of value."

He listed "values that I hope have become a part of you" during their education. "If you have made these learnings a part of you, they will aid you in becoming adults of great value." He cautioned that each will experience failure and undergo loss. "These experiences hold tremendous power to help you grow." He urged them to be forgiving of themselves and others, to "figure out what the truly important things in life are, and are not," to be confident, bold and positive risk-takers, to "know when to be kind and gentle with yourself and others, and when to be strong, unyielding and faithful to who you are and what you stand for."

Christensen also reminded them to participate in and give back to their communities, be good problem solvers, respect and care for the world and their own bodies and spirits. In closing, he urged, "Be excited about life, be enthusiastic about each day, the mountains, small or enormous that you must climb. Now get on your way."

Brown thanked the parents "for honoring us with these absolutely amazing gifts. We've been blessed with their attendance at our school." Noting that First Nations, Métis and white students are part of the grad class, he said, "This is what Canada should be. You're our holy trinity."

Melvin and Malantha Abraham sang "Stand By Me" as the students left the stage in the recessional.

Further Education looks back on a successful year

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

It's all over but the June 8 Show and Tell potluck, and it's been a busy year for Elk Point Further Education. The Further Education council met May 16, and discussed both the accomplishments of the past year and ideas for the upcoming fall and winter sessions.

Heinsburg coordinator Marie Zayac reported that the storyteller, hired with a contribution from the council, who entertained both students and parents at the recent school open house was a tremendous success with all ages. Classes in Heinsburg this year included "Soups with Ben" and "Salads with Ben," both of which were very well received. The instructor has indicated he would be willing to return again for more classes. Heinsburg School had a Community Access Program intern, who was kept busy tutoring area individuals interested in learning computer skills.

"There are a lot of free services out there," Zayac noted. A lawyer did a daytime session on bullying for the students and an evening session on various topics, including harassment, for the public, which was well attended.

Elk Point coordinator Verona Lea Flanders said some students from the Elk Point area also attended the soup and salad classes in Heinsburg. Two Yoga classes here were well received, but actually require a larger space. Other classes held here this winter and spring included hunter education, painting flowers on rocks, decorative stamping and willow wheelbarrow making. The Garden Group is up and running, with members enthusiastic about the coming season.

Elk Point's daytime quilting group is ongoing, with a total in excess of 800 quilts, plus other items, completed and donated to charity. The group were honored with one of the Volunteer Week awards. Quilt 'Til You Wilt goes twice monthly.

With the annual reports, policies and procedures submitted and approved, Flanders is now working on plans for fall courses, and says these include some new topics, such as a series of quilting mini-courses on appliqué, Rag Time, piecing and finishing. More suggestions for new courses are welcome.

A workshop to be held through the schools for both parents and children on the prevention of bullying and family violence is in the planning stages. Also on this theme, Further Ed has made a donation of books on bullying and family violence to F. G. Miller High School and Elk Point Public Library, which look at the situation in the setting of a novel.

Flanders says Further Ed plans to make more donations this year, this time of resources on health and parenting.

Spreading the word

Elk Point 4-H Beef Project members Chelsea Schnurer, Robyn Ockerman and Melissa Frisby display the promotional brochure, showing 4-Hers and their calves, that club members distributed last Thursday when they toured the town inviting business owners and managers to attend their show and the District Show and Sale on June 6 in St. Paul.

Thanking their STARS

Elk Point Health Centre emergency staff members (left to right) Pam Ballas, Rosanne Dutchak, Linda Dorey, Chantelle Maas and Barb Yopyk proudly show off two upgraded cardiac monitors which will help them to deal efficiently with emergencies. They were also provided with an advanced trauma workshop. Both the training and upgrades were made possible by a $2500 grant from the STARS Foundation.

STARS - Thank You

The Elk Point Health Centre staff would like to thank the STARS Foundation for their donation of $2,500. The money was used to provide the emergency staff with an advanced trauma workshop and the purchase of 2 cardiac monitor upgrades.

The staff would also like to thank the positive and helpful medical teams that travel with STARS air ambulance.

Student competes at Optimist International

INFORMATION SUBMITTED

Brandon Rainey, a 10-year-old student at the Elk Point Elementary School, represented the province of Alberta, in this competition.

Brandon, under the direction of Bernice Capjack, did very well in his speech about the Wright Brothers, the inventors of our airplane.

There are several zones in Alberta and Brandon had to win at three levels before competing in Lloydminster, where the Internationals were held. Brandon competed against a 13-year-old boy from Saskatchewan, a 13-year-old from Montana and Wyoming.

Brandon placed third and received a certificate of excellence as well as a plaque. He did very well and hopefully next year will be the one to win that $1,500 scholarship. The speeches that the students write must be their own ideas and be four minutes in length. They are judged on content as well as presentation.

Congratulations!
